In recent decades the swarm of health-care-related buying groups has multiplied, and it is easy to see the lure they possess. After all shipping is quick, the rebate check is in the mail, and the prices are cheap—right?

Maybe not. What has been shocking pharmacists lately is finding out that the actual amount paid for drugs plus any fees minus the rebate check is still more than if they had just purchased those drugs directly from a wholesaler.

To make it worse some buying groups are giving their pharmacists extra 'rebates' for purchasing more from them. For pharmacists who own their own stores this process can be an inhibiting force that causes the doors to be closed or the For Sale sign to go up.

After all, you get a bottle of Diltiazem 300's from your buying group at $53.99 so you think you're getting a fair price. But what did the wholesaler price that same bottle at? 45? 40? Who knows. The point is it's unfair and many times completely unethical.

Sometimes it just seems like there's no better way.

How about something great for a change? At BidGenerics.com we don't touch the numbers. When our suppliers update their price list they are giving you the lowest price they can give and you see that number. BidGenerics.com is supplier-supported so we'll never charge you a penny for use.

That's right; great prices, available to you free. Enjoy!

Breaking it down: can you afford to miss out?

On the pharmacy counter you have hundreds of choices to make in a given day. Knowing what to buy, how to buy and who to buy from just scratches the surface of the list of things going through your head on a daily basis. Let us help you out a little bit. For decades pharmacy has been adherent to the same train of thought; involving phone calls and faxes and grabbing the best deal while it's there.

But what if there was an easier way? A way that required some out-of-the-box thinking to get into but could be the answer to all your questions?

BidGenerics.com has been providing answers to these questions for years. We are giving you unlimited access to the most competitive generic drug prices available—for free. However, this process wouldn't work if not for the illimitable power of the Internet. We use the Internet as a real-time connector between the prices that our suppliers input and the prices you receive when you order.

It effectively eliminates the need for side-by-side comparisons from an endless array of sources, few of which are actually giving you a good deal. You input the best price you have purchased the drugs at, and we tell you immediately whether we're cheaper. What's even better is you have the ability to choose specifically who you want to receive prices from.

What some pharmacists don't realize is the prominence that the Internet already plays in their ordering process. When you order from your wholesaler off of the pharmacy computer you are sending that order through the Internet. The difference is you are getting stuck with the price your wholesaler pulls out that day.

Let BidGenerics.com show you a better way. Choose which suppliers you want to compete for your order and get the lowest price.
